

SOME GOODBYES DESERVE THE FRONT PAGE

Every company has people who leave a mark long before they retire. They're the ones who bring their heart into every room they walk into. The people who quietly make everyone around them better.

For us, that person is Joe.

This month, Joe retired after a career spent keeping thousands of homes warm and businesses running. Whether it was jumping into whatever truck needed to be on the road, lending a hand to a coworker, or doing whatever it took to get the job done, Joe embodied what teamwork looks like.

What makes Joe special, though, goes beyond the work. He has always been someone who gives back, spending his own personal time helping those experiencing homelessness and serving others without asking for recognition. That same compassion showed up every day at Hinds Energy.

One of the greatest blessings our company has had over the years isn't our trucks or our buildings, it's our people. Employees like Joe are the reason Hinds Energy has earned the trust of our communities for generations.

Joe, thank you for your years of dedication, your willingness to help wherever you were needed, and the example you've set for all of us. More than an employee, you've been a teammate, a mentor, and a friend.

Congratulations on your retirement. It has been an honor to have you as part of the Hinds family, and we wish you nothing but happiness in this next chapter.
